A majority of 3,000 workers on the day shift at Victoria Machinery Depot Co. Ltd. and Xarrows Ltd. dropped their tools and left the yards at 2.30 this afternoon to vote in the federal election despite a ruling of Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, that the war plants should not close before 4 o'clock.

Soldier Housing Priority Boosted

VANCOUVER (CP)—Work on 600 government-financed soldiers' homes in six B.C. cities and districts, including Victoria, has been advanced to "A-E" labor priority—one of the top priorities in Canada's manpower set-up.

The other centres affected are the Fraser Valley, the Okanagan, Kamloops, New Westminster and Vancouver.

Workers Wanted

Acting Chairman Harry Mills said today. The committee probably will hold its first meeting Tuesday to begin "screening" applications.

Meharists Revolt

BEYROUTH (AP)—Reliable reports reached Damascus describing a surprise revolt three days ago of the French-commanded Mehari Bedouin desert police force at Dmeir, 25 miles east of Damascus, in which 10 Frenchmen were killed. The revolt was said to have occurred in one of three Mehari companies of the colorful camel-mounted desert police.

Vancouver Quiet As Votes Polled

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver went to the polls today in orderly fashion and few incidents were reported. Voting in both city and rural ridings was heavy. Up to noon approximately 10,000 votes had been cast in New Westminster riding. This constituted about 20 per cent of the possible vote.

At a Vancouver centre polling booth a woman "poll captain" (Liberal) was electioneering within the polling station, contrary to the Elections Act. When C.C.F. scrutineers protested, R. M. Edgar, returning officer, sent word to the woman to behave herself or leave.

G. G. McGeer Goes to Senate; Others Named

OTTAWA (CP)—In a series of election day appointments today Prime Minister King announced filling of three Senate vacancies, reappointment of a Quebec Lieutenant Governor, and naming a Minister to Greece and appointment of a deputy postmaster-general.

Here are the appointments: G. G. McGeer, K.C., one-time Mayor of Vancouver and Liberal member of the House of Commons for Vancouver Burrard, to the Senate.

Dr. J. R. Hurlbise of Sudbury, Ont., former Liberal French-Canadian member of the House of Commons for Nipissing, Ont., to the Senate.

Jean Marie Dessureault, head of a Quebec city lumber firm and Liberal organizer in that province, to the Senate.

Maj.-Gen. Sir Eugene Fiset of Quebec, to another term as Lieutenant Governor of that province.

Maj.-Gen. L. R. LeFleche, who recently retired as Minister of National War Services, to Greece as Canadian Minister with the personal rank of ambassador.

Walter J. Turnbull of Ottawa, Private Secretary to the Prime Minister, to the post of deputy postmaster-general.

Lt.-Col. J. A. Sullivan of Ottawa, who has been acting as deputy postmaster-general, to the post of associate to Mr. Turnbull.

It had been expected that an appointment would also be made of a lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, but it was not included in the list handed to the press shortly after noon.

SENATOR MACDONALD DIES

Almost simultaneously with the filing of three Senate vacancies came word from Glace Bay, N.S., of the death of Senator John A. Macdonald, a Progressive Conservative, 62 years of age, who had been a member of the upper House since Feb. 3, 1932.

With the appointments and Senator Macdonald's death the Senate standing is: Liberals 66, Progressive Conservatives 29, vacancies one.

Senator McGeer was an outstanding exponent of monetary reform in the Commons and during the last spring and summer session of the House he offered critical debate to the government's banking legislation.

The newly-appointed B.C. Senator entered politics in 1916 when he was elected to the B.C. Legislature. He was again elected to the Legislature in the general election of 1933 and was Mayor of Vancouver for the 1935-36 term. He resigned from the B.C. Legislature to contest the Burrard federal constituency, which he won in the general election of 1933, being re-elected in 1940.

Jap Diet Agrees To Loss of Power

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The lower chamber of the Japanese Diet today passed an amended wartime emergency bill, the Tokyo radio broadcast, giving Premier Kantaro Suzuki's government virtual authority to rule Japan by decree.

The broadcast said the House had approved the measure after a six-hour delay caused when members of a House committee took exception to certain remarks made by the Premier.

Radio Tokyo said it was believed the House of Peers would pass the bill in its revised form.

In heated debate, many members charged the bill had the effect of dissolving the Diet, or Parliament. The discussions extended the scheduled two-day 87th special session into a four-day (Tuesday, Japan date).

Wrecked Plane Sighted; Signs Of Life Nearby

VANCOUVER (CP)—A wrecked Liberator bomber missing 10 days with its 11 R.A.F. crewmen is believed to have been sighted in rugged mountain country five miles south of the U.S. border and there are signs of life around the wreckage, the Western Air Command reported.

Planes carrying parachute jumpers were dispatched immediately to the area after signs of life were seen.

Ground search parties were near the wreckage area near Slesse Creek in Washington state, but because the country is very rugged it is believed it will take them a day to reach the scene.

Later the Western Air Command announced the wreckage had not been definitely established as that of the Liberator which has been missing for 10 days. The wreckage might have been that of a plane missing several months ago and signs of life around the wreckage might have been movements of a ground search party.

The plane failed to return to its Abbotsford, B.C., base after a routine flight over the interior of the province June 1.

5 in Hospital After Election Day Riot in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Five persons were given hospital treatment today following a riot by 30 to 35 unidentified men on the committee rooms of Roger Duhamel, Bloc Populaire candidate in Montreal-St. James.

Bystanders said the raiders piled out of seven automobiles and stormed the committee rooms, which were not crowded at the time. The committee room was wrecked, with windows smashed, furniture broken and three telephones ripped from the walls. Bloc Populaire spokesmen claimed two of the telephones had been carried away by the men.

The sharp outbreak of disorder was relatively short in duration, with the raiders making off in automobiles within a few minutes of their appearance.

Brooklyn Dodgers' Manager in Court

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 200 non-cheering Brooklyn Dodgers fans jammed Brooklyn Felony Court today for the arraignment of Leo (Lippy) Durocher, 39-year-old Dodgers manager accused of feloniously assaulting a medically discharged soldier.

In a routine legal procedure, Magistrate John F. X. Masterson adjourned the case until next Monday.

Durocher and Joseph Moore, 50, a special policeman at the Brooklyn ball park, were arrested Sunday on charges of assaulting John Christian, 21, a spectator at Saturday night's Brooklyn-Philadelphia game.

Christian said he was beaten because he had heckled the Brooklyn manager.

MacArthur Announces Landings On West Borneo, Labuan Island

MANILA (AP)—Elements of the 9th Australian Division have landed simultaneously at Labuan Island, Broketon and Maura in Brunei Bay on the western coast of Borneo, 800 miles north of Singapore and 600 miles east of Indo-China. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Naval and air bombardment levelled the enemy's beach defences and the assault troops swept ashore with only scattered opposition.

Warships of the U.S. 7th Fleet and the Royal Australian Navy, and bombers and fighters of the Royal Australian and U.S. 13th Air Forces are supporting the operation.

JAPS SURPRISED

This landing, which followed seizure of Tarakan, 600 miles away by sea on the opposite side of Borneo, took the enemy by surprise and consequently Allied casualties have been negligible.

Allied forces have captured Labuan town and airfield, and on the mainland have advanced 4,000 yards inland from Broketon towards Brunei Town.

The Brunei area is rich in oil, rubber, coal, lumber, iron and other resources, and in the 500 square miles of its sheltered bay numberless ships of any size can ride at anchor. Establishment of air and naval facilities at Brunei Bay, combined with those in the Philippines will complete a chain of mutually supporting strategic bases 1,500 miles long, from which air and naval forces are within continuous effective range of the Asiatic coast from Singapore to Shanghai.

ESCAPE ROUTES CUT

Operations from the Philippines bases have already practically destroyed enemy shipping in the South China Sea, and the Allies will now be able to intercept his overland lines of communication and escape routes in Indo-China and Malay.

At Brunei and Tarakan Gen. MacArthur's columns stand at the geographic centre of enemy-occupied Celebes, Bali, Java, Sumatra, Malaya and Indo-China. Japanese garrisons there now only await piecemeal destruction at will.

With his conquest in the East Indies cut off and isolated from the empire, the rich resources rendered valueless, his naval and air arms in the Indies rendered impotent, his ground troops immobilized and unable to obtain reinforcements or supplies, the enemy invader definitely has lost the war of strategy in the south-east Pacific, a headquarters spokesman said.

Patton in Tears

Many Victorians Saturday night heard the voice of Gen. George S. Patton as he spoke in Los Angeles during the great welcome given him and Gen. James S. Doolittle. Above is a glimpse a camera man caught at an earlier welcome. Overcome by the ovation given him at a state dinner in Boston, Gen. Patton wept unashamedly. The man who led the U.S. 3rd Army in the drive to victory in Germany is in Seattle today.

Jap Airfields In Tokyo-Yokohama District Strafed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—More than 30 fighters led by two Superfortresses strafed Japanese airfields in the Tokyo-Yokohama area for about an hour today starting fires, the Japanese Domei agency reported.

A second unconfirmed broadcast, recorded by the U.S. Federal Communications Commission, said an Allied naval force bombarded Minami Daito Island, about 200 miles east of Okinawa, Sunday. Radio Tokyo added that 70 planes also attacked the island.

Fires started by the fighters at the Tachikawa army airport and the Atsuki airfield were "extinguished almost as soon as they broke out," the broadcast claimed.

The bombardment force consisted of three battleships, three cruisers and five destroyers, Tokyo reported.

Party Leaders In Ottawa for Tally of Polls

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians went to the polls today, some under drenching skies, some in the sun, to cast the votes that will select a new House of Commons.

Hundreds of men and women in Saint John, N.B., cast their ballots before thousands in Victoria were awake.

Across the country the weather varied, but nowhere did nature present obstacles akin to those of the last Dominion election in March, 1940, when huge snowdrifts in Ontario and Quebec barred many residents from the polling booths.

In Nova Scotia the skies were generally cloudy, but this was said not to have interfered with the voting.

It was raining heavily at Montreal at 10 a.m., and voting was fairly light. Rain was reported "pretty general" throughout Quebec.

Weather officials in Ontario said there were scattered showers, but generally it "is a fairly favorable day." Over Toronto the sun warred with the clouds and could claim better than average success.

At Brockville, a heavy poll was indicated in the forenoon voting. It rained in the night, but clearing weather came.

In Calgary the weather was dull and windy with a trace of rain. In Edmonton it was "clear and cool." Over Regina, reported a "clear" day with indications of a "large" vote.

In Vancouver it was sunny and reports indicated a "heavy" vote. Prince Rupert reported that rains which fell throughout Sunday slackened as the polls opened this morning.

Cabinet Members In Ridings

Most members of the federal cabinet are in their home constituencies to receive the election results there. The three major party leaders—Prime Minister King, John Bracken and M. J. Coldwell—were in Ottawa today and will receive the general election results here tonight.

Mr. King ended his campaign with a public address here Friday night while Mr. Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, returned to the capital during the week-end, after delivering his final address in London, Ont., Saturday night.

Mr. Coldwell leader of the C.C.F., flew to Ottawa from his home constituency of Rosetown-Biggar in Saskatchewan, where he concluded his campaign with four speeches Saturday.

Never has there been such an overflow of candidates for the 245 seats of Canada's Commons. They number 954, the official nominated of an eligible electorate of perhaps 7,500,000. The Liberals nominated 235 candidates, the Progressive Conservatives 203 and the C.C.F. 205.

Among them are 94 Social Credit candidates, 68 Labor Progressives and a generous number of Independents and the Bloc Populaire in Quebec.

In fact, they do not. Under the prohibition against publishing returns in any province before its polls are closed Victoria newspapers wait four hours after polls close in the Maritimes before publication of eastern results.

Similar rules apply to radio. No broadcast of election results may be made in British Columbia until after 6 o'clock.

Signs Here Point To Record Vote

All signs point to a record-smashing vote in the federal general election in Victoria riding which got underway at 8 this morning.

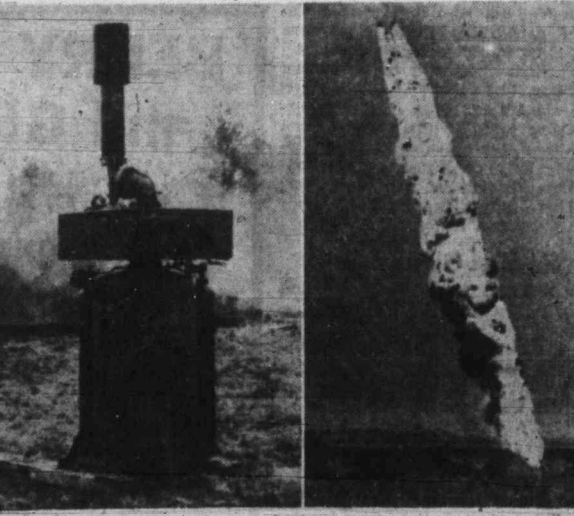

Polling continues at 179 stations throughout the riding which includes all Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt and a small section of Saanich until 6 tonight. Ballot counting will start immediately the polls close.

Results of the poll in which 43,791 citizens of the riding have the choice of selecting one of five candidates to represent them in the House of Commons for the next five years—should be indicated two or three hours after the polls close, unless it is a very close contest. Final results may not be completed for days until ballots of servicemen voters overseas have been counted.

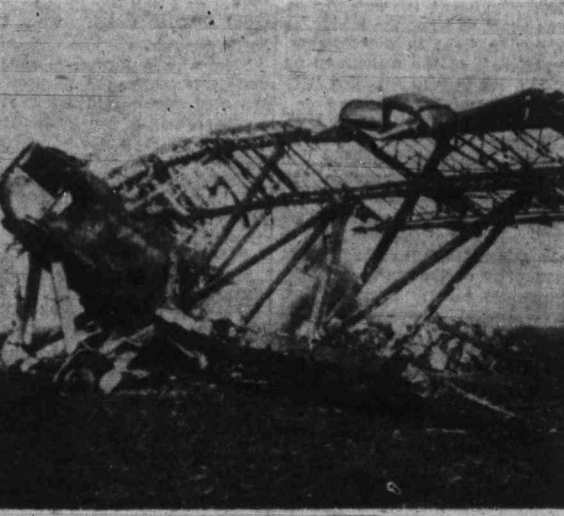

Conditions pointing to a record vote here include: 1. Bright weather, which usually brings the voters out. 2. A voters' list with 10,000 more names than at the last poll. 3. Early turnout for the polls soon after they opened.

Meanwhile, Sydney Child, returning officer here, said he had hundreds of telephone calls during the first three hours from citizens wanting to know where they should vote. He did not believe that the mailing of the list with all names for his district to each voter was as successful as a postcard system used in previous elections.

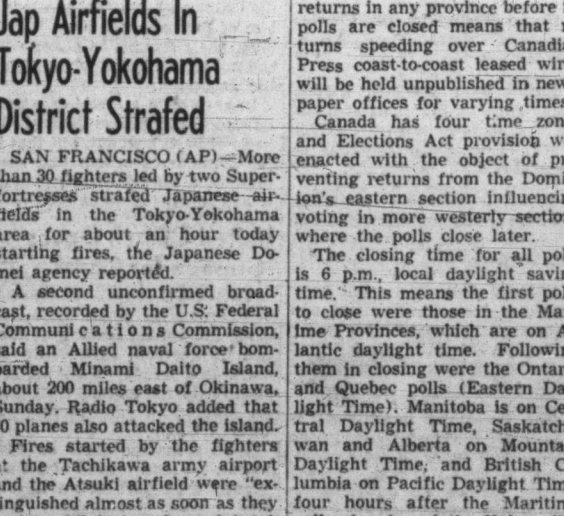

Ten Seconds of British Flame and Nazi Plane Was Kaput

This vertical flame-thrower was primarily designed for use on ships against planes.

In action, the flame-thrower throws a column of destruction into the air.

Ten seconds of exposure to the flame-thrower's blast leaves an enemy plane in this condition. This weapon was developed quickly when Britain faced invasion.

Duncan Officer
Describes Sinking
Of Tribal Destroyer

HALIFAX (CP)—Thick black oil that spurted from the bowels of the stricken Athabaskan quelled fires that had started in the Canadian Tribal class destroyer after she was torpedoed April 22 last year, and possibly prevented loss of further life, Lieut. Robin Hayward of Duncan, B.C., one of the survivors, said here.

Lieut. Hayward, who arrived in Halifax Sunday aboard the sister Tribal Haida, said the oil gushed from the tanks of the destroyer a second or two after her boilers and engines had blown through the upper deck and started many fires. The oil was thick it put the fires out immediately.

The Athabaskan was sunk in a fierce engagement with an enemy Eilbing class destroyer and E-boats in the English Channel. The Haida was with her at the time, and picked up the few remaining survivors of the sinking. Though most of her crew and her commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. John Stubbs of Victoria, were lost. About 139 of the crew were killed in the second torpedo explosion, after the ship had been raked by shellfire from the enemy destroyers. Bits of engines, boilers and equipment were thrown high in the air and rained a deadly hail of shrapnel on the Athabaskan's decks.

Lieut. Hayward was on the bridge during the action. The captain had given the abandonment order just before the second torpedo hit, and that was the last Hayward saw of him. Later, survivors said the captain was on a float from which the Haida was picking up survivors, but the Haida had to pull away before all could be taken aboard.

The survivors were taken to Brest on a German minesweeper. From Brest they went to Westinghouse, 22 miles west of Bremen, where Hayward was placed in solitary confinement seven weeks for interrogation. He already had spent one week in solitary at Brest.

Hayward and the other Athabaskan survivors were liberated April 28 this year, but it was May 7 before they could get transportation out.

Russia and Allies
United in Desire
For Peace, Says Ike

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN (AP)—Soviet Russia and the Allies are united in a desire for a lasting, firmly-based peace which will afford for the common men of all nations the "opportunities that we fought to preserve for them," Gen. Eisenhower asserted Sunday before high ranking leaders of Britain, Russia and the United States.

The Supreme Allied commander and Field Marshal Montgomery both received from Marshal Zhukov the Jewelled Order of Victory. It was the first time Soviet Russia's highest award had been presented to any but Russians. Eisenhower was the eighth person to receive the award, and Sir Bernard the ninth.

Eisenhower, addressing a luncheon at his headquarters which honored Marshal Zhukov, conqueror of Berlin, declared:

"Speaking for the Allied forces, I say we are going to have peace even if we have to fight for it."

"On two occasions now I have had the great honor of meeting high officials of the Soviet government. It is my feeling that in the basic desires of all of us they are one with us."

WELDED ARMIES

The Supreme Allied Commander bestowed glowing praise on Marshal Zhukov, who in turn described Eisenhower as belonging to the immortal great of all times for welding the victorious armies from so many different peoples.

The glittering order of victory, a diamond and ruby medal, is said to have a value of at least $12,000.

Gen. Eisenhower decorated Montgomery today with the U.S. Distinguished Service Medal for meritorious service. The citation noted that Montgomery was in direct command of Allied armies invading Germany on D-day and said:

"The success of this invasion against seemingly impregnable fortifications was in large measure due to careful planning and thorough training under his guidance of all echelons of engaged troops."

War With Japan May
Last 2 More Years,
Says Gen. Stilwell

OKINAWA (Relayed by Censor AP)—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, making a front line inspection of the stubborn Okinawa battle, declared today (Thursday) that the war with Japan easily could last at least two years longer.

"It is quite possible that we shall have to fight in 'Manchuria,' he said, even after the Japanese home islands are conquered."

"Personally I believe it will require ground action in addition to anything done by bombing," said the commanding general of army ground forces in disagreement with a belief he said was held by many Americans that bombing alone could defeat Japan.

Stating he saw no reason to expect the Japanese to break, Gen. Stilwell remarked, "I cannot see how, when they are so tenacious individually, we can expect their mass morale to crack."

"Vinegar Joe," who already had watched the U.S. 6th Army in action on Luzon in the Philippines, has been here several days, living at the front and watching the hard struggle of the troops whose training is his responsibility.

He has "seen nothing here that would call for a change in training methods and expressed belief that troops with proper basic training could master readily the Japanese methods of fighting from caves."

Commenting again on the Japanese tenacity, he said that while the Okinawa battlefield reminded him of France in the First World War, the Germans in either war had not shown the stubbornness of the Japanese.

In answer to a direct question, he said the Japanese generalship had not been brilliant, but that if the command's orders had been to fight a purely delay action, it had made the right moves.

United Church Opens
'Crusade for Christ'

TORONTO (CP)—Before 20,000 persons in Maple Leaf Gardens, the United Church of Canada membership in Toronto inaugurated Sunday night a "crusade for Christ and his Kingdom" on the 20th anniversary of Church Union.

With a massed choir of 1,200 voices, representatives of all age groups took part in an impressive pageant and pledged themselves to try "to win to Christ and his church all those individuals and families in our own and other lands not yet reached by the Gospel message."

Victoria Ship's After Deck Curled Up By Torpedo

Five ratings were killed, two missing and presumed dead and 10 wounded when H.M.C.S. Chebogue, Yarrow-built frigate, was torpedoed in mid-Atlantic it has been announced by naval authorities at Ottawa. She remained afloat and was towed to port after a perilous eight days. The above picture gives some idea of the damage done to the Chebogue by the torpedo which ripped into her port quarter. A rating is examining the quarter-deck, almost in a vertical position. Chebogue was launched at Yarrow's Aug. 16, 1943. She is commanded by Lt. Cmdr. Maurice F. Oliver.

German Sub's Surrender
Told By Victoria Sailor

(Ottawa today relayed the following account of the surrender of the German submarine U-190 in the north Atlantic written by Sick Berth Attendant Bernard Laity, son of Mrs. Sam Laity, 301 Moss Street, who enlisted here three and a half years ago.)

By SBA. BERNARD LAITY
ABOARD H.M.C.S. THORLOCK
AT SEA—Our gallant little craft was on convoy escort duty, home ward bound. Hostilities had ceased in Europe and speculation was high among members of the crew as to the possibilities of further assignments.

Just before noon May 10 Thorlock was ordered from the convoy, in company with the frigate H.M.C.S. Victrola, for rendezvous with a German submarine which wanted to surrender and had reported her position to shore.

The notations on the ship's log, of course, relate the whole adventure as just another job, as indeed it was. But the deck log does not reveal the feeling of the ship's company about this job we had ahead.

GOT SHIP IN READINESS

During the nine-hour interval between leaving the convoy and the actual contact with the submarine there was much to do. The boarding party was mustered, given final instructions and their arms, ammunition and equipment checked. The stokers' mess was cleared, ready for occupation by the prisoners that would be coming aboard.

Shortly before 8 that evening, a stoker, in his eagerness to gain a higher vantage point from which to scan the ocean for first possible glimpse of the submarine, mounted the bridge. This stoker, Emile Houde, got the first glimpse of the sub. As he was about to leave the bridge he noticed a light in the distance, reported it to the signalman on watch. He in turn reported it to the officer of the watch.

A signal was then sent to H.M.C.S. Victrola, that we were in contact with the submarine.

The next brief notation of the log was "Submarine on surface, illuminated with searchlight—2017." It is not hard to picture the mixed feelings of excitement and pride of the entire crew behind that excerpt from the log. Everybody was closed up at his "action station." Although the sea was calm, a black, moonless night had blanketed the entire scene. Dead ahead lay the Germans.

They were awaiting our arrival with their navigation lights burning, according to the surrender routine. Would they carry out all the conditions of surrender? What was to stop them from becoming suddenly hostile? We wondered that as Thorlock closed with all guns trained on the lights. Recognition signals were then sent in challenge, some difficulty being experienced at first in understanding the German signals. The captain then gave the order, "Illuminate the target." The ship's searchlight probed a finger of light through the dark. There she lay, looming large in the light's brilliant beam, flying the black flag agreed upon as another surrender token, awaiting the will of her captors.

Briskly and efficiently the boarding party manned the sea boat and were lowered over the ship's side. Within five minutes they were at the submarine's side. Thus at 20.33 hours May 10, the commander of the German submarine U-190 surrendered himself and his crew to the executive officer of H.M.C.S. Thorlock, Lieut. Ossie Blachford of Montreal. That made our first lieutenant officer-in-charge of the first Canadian naval boarding party to board a surrendered German submarine in the northwest Atlantic.

Captain of H.M.C.S. Thorlock is Lieut. John Francis, whose wife resides at 351 St. James Street. He enlisted in the navy in September, 1939, and after serving in Malaspina and later on the destroyer Saguinay, he was then given command of H.M.C.S. Noranda.

Russia Studying
Demobilization

By EDDY GILMORE

BERLIN (AP)—Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov has disclosed that Soviet Russia is studying the question of demobilizing her mighty army and at the same time told his own story of the night attack which won the battle for Berlin.

"The war in Europe is ended," assistant commander-in-chief of the Red Army said Sunday to correspondents here from Moscow. "We now are studying the question of demobilization."

Marshal Zhukov said also: 1. Soviet Russia wants German war criminals tried at once preferably in public.

2. The Soviets feel it would be useful to have foreign correspondents in Berlin.

The Marshal said a novel night attack by 4,000 Soviet tanks and nearly 5,000 airplanes, striking in the white glare of massed searchlights, broke German defences along the Oder River and delivered Berlin to the Red Army.

"The suddenness of our blow was overwhelming," the Marshal said. His statement, telling of what probably was the greatest night battle in history, was the first detailed account of how the Red Army broke through 500,000 German defenders and took Berlin last April.

Lieut. Edward Geddes of Victoria is shown aboard Chebogue as he examined the damage. He formerly served as an engineer on C.P.R. steamers on this coast and joined the navy five years ago. Highest praise for preventing loss of the Chebogue was given to Lieut. Geddes and his engineering staff.

Would Draw French,
British Troops
From Middle East

BEYROUTH (AP)—Sir Edward Grigg, British Resident Minister in the Middle East, has suggested that French and British forces be withdrawn simultaneously from the Levant states. His proposal was made at a press conference Sunday in which he denied a charge by Gen. Oliva Roget, French commander in southern Syria, that British troops were reinforced just before the outbreak of French-Syrian fighting.

Sir Edward said he made his statement because "British officers and British action have been grossly traduced."

The British Minister said the Levant states in themselves were of no importance as a communications link with the Far East war, but "if we had not intervened to prevent further bloodshed in Syria there would have been far greater fighting in Syria and ferment throughout the Middle East. We are seeking here only a peace which all our Allies can honorably accept."

Gurkhas Chase Japs

CALCUTTA (CP)—While Gurkha troops inched forward along the Tougoo-Mawchi Road Sunday in pursuit of Japanese forces retreating toward the Thailand border, Liberators of the Eastern Air Command blasted an enemy ferry crossing on the Salween River 100 miles to the southeast, the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

The communique said the Gurkhas had reached a point slightly more than 19 miles east of Tougoo and had forced the enemy to withdraw from positions there.

Coldwell Says Coalition Proposed
To Him If No Party Wins Majority

ROSETOWN, Sask. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. national leader, said in an election address Saturday night that an "approach" had been made to him to have the C.C.F. enter a coalition with the Liberal Party in the event of neither being able to secure a clear majority in the House of Commons.

"I predict that no party will have a clear majority in the House after Monday's voting," said Mr. Coldwell. "I do not know who will have the largest group. The question has been asked whether I would enter a coalition with the Liberals. I can say that I have been approached. My answer was 'No.'"

He did not elaborate. Mr. Coldwell came to the constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, standing as a candidate for reelection for the first time today, and spoke Saturday at Delisle, Rosetown and Biggar, concluding his campaign at the latter centre.

He later flew to Ottawa to hear the election results at his home there tonight.

In his concluding addresses, Mr. Coldwell said the San Francisco conference demonstrated the nations must solve the problem of food distribution and end hunger among millions of people, or lasting peace never would be attained.

While the C.C.F. had not been successful in the Ontario provincial election a week ago, he had been "cheered" by the results of the overseas vote in 14 of the 17 Toronto district constituencies which showed a majority for his party.

"The returning officer has been told not to issue any more reports until after the federal vote Monday," he continued. "But there is something symbolic in that voting, for the men overseas who have been fighting Nazism know what they are fighting against and what they are voting for."

He was "thoroughly ashamed" of Canada voting for the admission of Argentina into the family of the peace-loving nations at the San Francisco Conference. That republic had incarcerated 1,450 advocates of freedom since the United Nations began their San Francisco meeting.

Free Exchange of World News Urged By U.S. Committee After Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Society of Newspaper Editors threw its support today behind the idea of an international conference to promote the free exchange of news among the nations of the world.

The society's board of directors adopted a resolution favoring such a meeting in Australia when conditions permit. The board acted on the recommendation of a globe-girdling committee which said it had discovered during a 40,000-mile tour a real desire in editors of most nations "for more freedom of the press than most nations have heretofore enjoyed or permitted."

The committee's travels, sponsored by the A.S.N.E. to test and discuss postwar freedom of the press and of communications, resulted in many pledges of co-operation from government leaders. Some of these pledges were described by committee members, however, as "lip service."

A 50,000-word report on their findings was approved and made public Sunday night by the A.S.N.E. directors. Those who made the world tour are committee chairman Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune and A.S.N.E. first vice-president; Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; and Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

Prime objective of the mission—first of its kind—was to have included in forthcoming peace treaties governmental pledges not to censor news at the source, not to use the press as an instrument of national policy, and to permit a free flow of news in and out of each country.

Reporting they had not found much news freedom under war-time conditions, the committee said it was evident "that many governments were controlling the press politically, under the guise of war security."

Claim Pressure In Signing Japanese For Repatriation

KASLO, B.C. (CP)—Up to 50 Japanese who are "unsuited for relocation" are to be moved from Kaslo to New Denver next Wednesday, the New Canadian, Japanese weekly newspaper published here, said Saturday.

"This is expected to be the first step towards making Kaslo a relocation centre where families suitable for relocation will be brought together to be moved east as housing accommodation and jobs are arranged for them in the east," the paper said.

Further the paper said, that the repatriation survey of the Japanese in British Columbia was called an "act of intimidation" in a report presented at the United Church Conference in Vancouver recently.

"The charge was not altogether unjustified," the paper said, adding "that although the survey was publicized as being voluntary, in actual fact it was weighted to induce more persons to ask for repatriation."

"This fact would account for the 'absurdly' large percentage that is estimated to have signed for repatriation."

Quoting a Montreal story, the paper said "it now appears that close to 10,000 men, women or children, Japanese nationals, naturalized citizens, Canadian-born second generation, have been signed up to go to Japan."

The Montreal story, as quoted by the New Canadian, said:

"The evidence is that those who had the greatest freedom of action in relocation are by far the most satisfactorily resettled."

"Different procedures were adopted as between west and east of the Rockies."

"In B.C., every person was ordered to make a declaration for or against going to Japan... east of the Rockies, however, action on the part of the evacuees was purely voluntary."

Files Give Lists Of Hitler's Guests, Many Criminals

By DUNCAN HOOPER
MOSCOW (Reuter)—In the dusty, paper-strewn hall of Adolf Hitler's chancellery in Berlin I found a shelf full of bound files which give the complete record of Hitler's social life—a list of all the banquets and diplomatic functions staged in the building, with the names of all the guests and of the few who refused the Fuehrer's invitations.

The list in many sections reads like a catalogue of war criminals, many of the most notorious names on which have since been blotted out by suicide.

A typical function was a dinner March 8 for the German government at which the Danzig gauleiter Forster, Julius Streicher, Goebbels and Funk were all there. Rudolf Hess and his wife declined for a reason not stated.

In April of the same year Hitler gave a banquet for the departure of the Hungarian premier, Count Teleki, and the Foreign Minister, Count Oskai, which glittered with notorious names: Goerring, Ribbentrop, Schwering, von Krosigk, Count Neurath, Goebbels and Funk were all there. Rudolf Hess and his wife declined for a reason not stated.

During the 33 days after the Canadian push north and east from Nijmegen, began Feb. 8, more than 18,000 casualties—most of them Canadian and British—were cared for in the hospital's makeshift buildings near "Hertogenbosch, Holland." Sixteen hundred operations were performed in an operating room improvised in the former host- age camp maintained by the Germans for Dutch military prisoners.

Offer New Youth Plans for Canada

HAMILTON (CP)—The new executive headed by E. J. O'Connor of Calgary was handed a policy program based on youth development, civic improvement, veterans' re-establishment and leadership training at closing sessions of the 10th national conference of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada here during the week-end.

Leadership training through speaking classes and other self-development activities was stressed. A supervised program of sports and recreation was urged in conjunction with pressure for more playgrounds and recreation centres.

Under the civic improvement heading came correction of unsatisfactory conditions, war against venereal disease, traffic safety, housing and town planning.

Mr. O'Connor succeeded Walter Attridge of Montreal as president. Other officers include Frank Thornhill, Winnipeg, and Ernest Goss, Saskatoon, vice-presidents.

Two-Thirds Cut Planned in R.A.F.

LONDON (CP)—The R.A.F. is to be reduced to about one-third its present strength of approximately 1,000,000 men and women in the next 12 months, the Air Ministry said today.

Readjustment for the war against Japan will bring about the release of many groups, the retraining and remustering of others, and the renewal of recruiting. Some R.A.F. personnel has been transferred to the navy.

The European war required 75 per cent of the R.A.F.'s personnel to be based at home stations to send bomber fleets against Germany. In the Japanese war home-based personnel will be reduced to 60 per cent of the force.

Old Belief
Our ancestors of not so many years ago believed that one slept better if the head of the bed pointed due north, in order that the body might be lulled by the magnetic currents that were thought to flow from the north to the south poles.

Admiral Jones went aboard to greet the ships' personnel, along with Capt. "D" at Halifax, Capt. J. C. Hibbard, D.S.C., former commanding officer of Iroquois.

Cmdr. K. F. Adams, R.C.N., commands Iroquois, while Lt. Cmdr. Bob Welland, D.S.C., R.C.N., and Lt. Cmdr. H. V. W. Groos, R.C.N., skipper the Haida and Huron respectively. All three men are from Victoria.

Only original officer of the Iroquois still aboard here is Lieut. William Hayes of Swift Current, Sask.

Nazi Troops Disarm Gestapo in Paris
PARIS (AP)—The Wehrmacht tried to seize power from the S.S. and the Gestapo in Paris by a military coup the night of the attempt on Hitler's life, a prominent French industrialist said today.

The Wehrmacht coup succeeded temporarily, he said, but through its preservation, he says there is no reason international law should not be built up as we have built our own common law—through the application of public conscience to incidents of the moment.

The justice proposes to try whole organizations—the Nazi party, the S.S., the Gestapo—and then put it up to the members individually to offer mitigating evidence as to the effect of their connections.

He does not believe that anyone who commits a new crime, or who devises variations on an old one with which public conscience is only now catching up, should go free until a law is passed (especially when there is as yet no organization for passing the law) which would only catch the next offender.

Canadian Hospital No. 8 Handled 18,000 Casualties In 33 Days

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Woven into Justice Robert H. Jackson's plans for the prosecution of war criminals are ideas of such import that they are likely to become historic.

Justice Jackson proclaims the right to try the makers of war for making war, the right, when civilization itself is outraged, to impose sentences which were not provided prior to the crime, and the right to humanity to sit in judgment.

In answer to those who fear we cannot reach the Nazi criminals through present international law, and who feel the sanctity of legal precedent is more important than any carriage which may occur

Canadian Hospital No. 8 Handled 18,000 Casualties In 33 Days

By MARGARET ECKER
PARIS (CP)—No. 8 Canadian General Hospital, in the crucial days before final victory in western Europe, chalked up a record that tops those of all Canadian military hospitals in Italy, Britain or the western front.

During the 33 days after the Canadian push north and east from Nijmegen, began Feb. 8, more than 18,000 casualties—most of them Canadian and British—were cared for in the hospital's makeshift buildings near "Hertogenbosch, Holland." Sixteen hundred operations were performed in an operating room improvised in the former host- age camp maintained by the Germans for Dutch military prisoners.

When the Canadians broke through at Caen and Falaise, No. 8 followed them. The chief complaint I heard from officers, nurses, stretcher-bearers and orderlies was that the hospital was never close enough to the front and wounded men had to be driven too far along rough roads before they received adequate medical care.

ITS NEXT MOVE?
The hospital is resting now and there are only about 150 patients in its beds. What the next job for No. 8 will be has not been announced. It may go home to Canada as a magical word—or stay to care for the Canadian occupation force. At present the nursing sisters and doctors are on leave at Canadian leave centres throughout Europe.

The hospital went into Normandy in July, 1944. Its sprawling canvas tents were hardly up before casualties from Caen rolled in. During the first two weeks ambulances brought more than 2,000 patients along the dusty Bayeux-Litry road.

Under the commanding officer, Col. W. E. Hume of Sherbrooke, Que., the staff worked at least 14 hours a day and often the operating-room staff did 36-hour stretches. Water was scarce. There was hardly any for personal washing, and when there was it was cold.

He said tanks surrounded the Gestapo buildings and the Wehrmacht troops went in. There was no fighting. The Gestapo seemed to be taken by surprise. The windows of the building were thrown open and a blaze of light shone out. The soldiers ransacked the place and disarmed the Gestapo.

Later the Frenchman learned that similar action was taken that night in other S.S. and Gestapo centres. By 7 a.m., however, word was received that Hitler was not dead and Himmler was in control.

Canadian Soldiers Complete Historic Overseas Ballot

WITH THE CANADIANS IN GERMANY (CP)—Canadian soldiers casting their ballots in Germany for the political representatives of their choice back home, completed a history-making vote Saturday. It was the first time voting for a Canadian general election had taken place in an occupied country.

The balloting, which began May 28, ended in a last-minute rush, hampered by a downpour of rain. Capt. J. R. Diroux of Montreal, chief returning officer in this theatre, said the ballots probably would all be tallied by June 15-16. The results are scheduled to be announced June 19-20.

Polling booths were set up at various places through units of the 2nd and 3rd Canadian Divisions and 2nd Canadian Corps headquarters personnel.

Capt. Giroux of the Governor-General's Foot Guards estimated 75 per cent of the corps personnel exercised the franchise.

Many soldiers were voting for the first time. Posters urged men to exercise the franchise on the theory that if a large soldier vote was accorded the elected members of Parliament would realize the soldier is vitally interested in his postwar government.

A few miles east of Emden, officers and men of the South Saskatchewan Regiment of Weyburn and Regina took time out from guarding the Ems-Jade Canal, the boundary of German forces concentrated in northwest Germany, to cast their ballots.

At Leer the 8th Canadian Reconnaissance Regiment of Clmax, Swift Current and Regina, Sask., exercised the franchise between heading thousands of German soldiers through the last lap of their long march afoot from

AN EVENTFUL WEEK

LAST WEEK WAS A BLACK ONE FOR the Japanese. The oligarchy in Tokyo is sorely perplexed. Its bombastic propaganda is a futile shelter from ever-increasing Allied airpower. Even the much-advertised spiritual armor of the supposedly divinely-protected emperor is now exposed to Nippon's millions for the silly sham it is. Verily are the United Nations witnessing the "beginning of the end" of the war against the architects of the "Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere."

For the United Nations, too, the beginning of last week presented a none-too-propitious outlook. Ugly conditions still prevailed in Syria and Lebanon. Marshal Tito was warning that he would fight for the territory which his troops had occupied if no other method satisfactory to him were discovered. The first meeting of the Allied Control Commission in Berlin had ended on a sour note. None could see any satisfactory solution for the veto deadlock at the United Nations Conference on International Organization in San Francisco. The skeptics and the Russophobes adopted their "I-told-you-so" mood and resumed their harping on the inevitability of war with the Soviet Union. For a day or two the crepe-hangers were beating their muffled drums.

And then events began to unfold with startling rapidity. The diplomatic skies quickly cleared. Exchanges between London and Paris and other Allied capitals eased the tension in the Levant; the serious danger which threatened began to evaporate. Marshal Tito exchanged his belligerence for reason; he is withdrawing his troops—have a small token force—from Trieste under an agreement bearing his signature. What coolness existed momentarily between the military leaders of the "Big Three" in the battered German capital dissolved yesterday in the warmer air of the once beautiful city of Frankfurt-on-the-Main; there Marshal Zhukov invested Field Marshal Montgomery and General Eisenhower with the coveted Order of Victory—a distinction hitherto jealously preserved for Marshals of the Soviet Union. And the cordial exchanges at the inevitable banquet seemed to provide new evidence that Russia, Great Britain and the United States intend to march into the unpredictable future with the same unity of purpose which marked their triumphal co-operation in the war.

Far away from the scene of nearly six years of mortal combat, moreover, still another potentially-dangerous controversy passed into the limbo; by the week's end the Russian delegation in the city by the Golden Gate agreed to the introduction of elasticity into the arbitrary veto power laid down in the agreement of Yalta—insisted on there, incidentally, by the United States as well as by the Soviet Union. The removal of this stumbling block is especially important because it means that the machinery for preserving the peace of the future is now assured, that its operation will not be cluttered up by obstacles to enforcement of the ultimate charter's decrees—also that the work of the Conference can be wound up on the requisite note of harmony and high purpose. Thus are we permitted to regard the week just gone not only as the blackest week for the remaining enemy since Pearl Harbor, but also one of victorious composition of difficulties which had cast considerable gloom over the peoples of the United Nations.

But why should the peoples of the United Nations be unduly disturbed if conflicts of view among their respective governments should emerge from time to time—and for some time to come? It is fantastic to expect smooth sailing immediately following the greatest upheaval, physically and mentally, which the world has ever known. By the same token, it is nothing short of miraculous that reversion from years of wholesale slaughter to the sudden silence of peace has produced such comparative accord among so many races of conflicting ideologies—absorbed so completely and for so long in the ghastly business of killing. Other and perhaps more serious differences will crop up until the world has fully regained its sanity. The experience of recent weeks, however, ought to be interpreted as a happy augury for the future—the more so because the public has been kept informed of what has occurred.

LIGHT DIET

ONE OF THE MOST PUBLICIZED anomalies of inflation now rampant in China concerns the relative monetary returns given college professors and rich-shaw-men. The latter, regarded in a very menial class, exceed the former in earning capacities under the present disjointed times. A logical explanation might be found in the fact that college professors are doubtless paid on a yearly basis, while the oriental human cab horses can vary their charges from day to day. In the meantime, it will be left for the student, and scholarship is highly regarded in China, to contemplate the verities or otherwise of the quotation, "Reading maketh a full man."

THE LESSON LEARNED

TWO STATEMENTS FROM EUROPE, one emanating from Berlin and the other from Paris, underscore the indelible character in which the lessons of the last post-war period in Europe have been written on men's minds.

In Paris, Ambassador Edwin W. Pauley, President Truman's personal representative on the Allied Reparations Commission, declared that Germany would be stripped of various industries to destroy her future war potential. Said Mr. Pauley:

"We do not want another war to take place and we are anxious to see that type of equipment taken out of Germany even though we don't want it ourselves."

In Berlin, Marshal Zhukov declared he would pursue a policy of economic disarmament of Germany so thorough as to make it impossible for Germany ever to rise again as a military power.

The results of that policy are obvious. In addition to losing its war potential, the Reich will lose much of the ability to re-establish itself economically. That will increase the labors of her people to reassume a position as a leading civilian power. The course is inevitable. Like the doubly-convicted firebug, Germany must be deprived of the means of starting another conflagration. And there may be a value other than physical prevention in the course which is to be followed. If that country were in a position to effect a rapid recovery, before the virus of Fascism has been completely drawn from it, latent Nazi sentiment now under cover might find it possible to reassert itself. Deprived of many of its industries, the progress to full re-establishment will be slow.

The opportunities of educating new generations of Germans will be extended over a longer period before national strength returns. By the time Germany has regained her stature as an industrial leader, the people may have been raised to a sufficiently high level to be trusted with vast peacetime production without the danger of its conversion to war purposes.

NOT CARRIED UNANIMOUSLY

FROM THE PEN OF MR. JAMES W. Gerard, who visited Victoria in September, 1917, immediately after his return from Germany, where he had been United States ambassador, comes the suggestion that the Hohenzollerns be restored as constitutional monarchs of Germany. Writing in the current issue of the American Magazine, he sets forth arguments in support of his proposal, submitting, among them, that:

"I think it is evident that under the Kaiser's regime the military and Junkers cliques were able to dominate the German parliament because that body represented the people of a politically unorganized collection of weak and jealous principalities, and because the working-class Germans, as such, were divided among themselves and were not allowed to become politically strong. But today a German parliament representing a politically and culturally integrated Germany—regardless of the fact that it was Hitler who made them that way—would have an excellent chance of keeping the militarists and the rich industrialists under control."

Mr. Gerard predicates his thesis on the statement that the peace and prosperity of the world depend largely on the creation of a peaceful and prosperous Germany, and says that the destruction of her scientific and industrial capacity and her commerce will ultimately injure the economic health of every great nation.

In the light of last week's statements to the effect that industries that carry a war potential, which can be converted to war purposes, will be removed from the Reich, it is difficult to see how a peaceful and prosperous Germany can be regenerated in the near future. Nor will Gerard's argument that the future administration of Germany will need "the dignity, pomp, and authority that the German people require and respect in their leadership" carry very much weight. There has been developed too strong a sentiment against creating another figurehead around which those undesirable characteristics that are taken to be national in the Reich could be marshalled. To many people, the production of a symbol of monarchy of Hohenzollern extraction suggests the rallying point for forces which have been blamed, and rightly so, for two world wars in a quarter of a century.

History may prove the merits of Mr. Gerard's arguments. Common sense may emphasize his argument for the creation of a future peaceful and prosperous Germany. But public opinion, at present, is not ready to accept the responsibility for recreating a strong Germany that might again set the sabres rattling. Only the future will decide the compromise by which that nation will be restored to political and economic stature, as opposed to the state of impotency to which it has been reduced by war, and in which it is incapable of initiating the physical steps toward another conflict.

RUSSIA'S PLAN FOR YOUTH

RUSSIA'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF CONSCRIPTION for boys over 15 in order to give them full military training must be regarded in the light of their enormous losses in men during the war. Also it is a means of planning the future economy of the nation which is being converted as rapidly as possible from a predominantly agricultural to an industrial economy. Moreover, it should give the youth of the country a good training in teamwork and discipline. It is a very young age, and it will probably strike the Russophobes as the beginning of an enormous army for war, just when we are all talking peace.

But quite as logically it can be argued that if these boys are physically fit at that age for military training, they are fit for the task of rebuilding the ruined cities of Russia—and for the peaceful progress of the nation under the best auspices.

Don't feel inferior to the expert war commentator. You can't do worse than guess wrong, and they've all done that, too.

Walter Lippmann

LIGHT FROM HISTORY

THE POSITION of England in 1815 after the Battle of Waterloo was enough like our own today to be worth attentive study. England belonged to an alliance of four great powers which had defeated Napoleon's attempt to conquer Europe; the problem of her foreign ministers in the five or six immediate postwar years, was how to keep the alliance together in order, as Castlereagh put it, "to bring back the world to peaceful habits."

Then, as now, there was a tendency for the victorious great power alliance to break up into hostile combinations. The Russia of the Czar Alexander and the Austria of Count Metternich were the two chief contenders. The situation was complicated further by the fact that all of Europe was in the grip of vehement conflict between revolutionary Jacobinism and legitimacy.

In this dangerous confusion the English statesman quickly saw what was the vital interest of England. It was to hold the alliance together, and this, they realized, would not be done if England became so entangled with one ally that she would be embroiled with the other. They saw no less clearly and certainly that England must not become a partisan in the ideological quarrel of the Continent, and that to restore peace in Europe and peace of mind among men she must be identified neither with the reactionary nor with the revolutionary forces.

DELIBERATELY and consciously Castlereagh chose for England that role in Europe which the great French writer, Montesquieu, had called puissance mediatrice—the mediating power. It is not to be confused with isolationism. Castlereagh and his successor Canning did not wash their hands of Europe. On the contrary, they participated actively in all important European questions. But in participating they followed a line of policy which was their own, seeking to pacify the turbulence by refusing to become the supporters of any one of the particular causes.

The role of mediating power fitted England's position as a country concerned with Europe but not part of it, as a country having great weight and influence in Europe but no special interest in the boundaries and dynasties of Europe. It suited her vital interest which was to restore peace after a long and devastating war. The success of this policy did much to shepherd Europe through the disorders and hysteria of the postwar years and to usher in that long peace which for about a hundred years was unbroken by any great and universal war.

A FOREIGN MINISTER who was less clear-sighted than Castlereagh, less prompt and firm in his judgment, could easily have bungled the whole business. The Cambridge history of British foreign policy tells us that in 1815, in the weeks immediately after Waterloo and the Congress of Vienna, the "enigmatic attitude of the Czar, not toward the question of Turkey only... kept the European chancelleries in a flutter of excitement and apprehension... he preached unctuously the gospel of fraternity and mutual trust; but his agents were meanwhile carrying on dark intrigues in every court and country in Europe; and it is not surprising that to Austria... he seemed, to quote Baron Vincent, to be 'disguising under the language of Evangelical self-abnegation schemes of far-reaching ambition'."

When in January, 1816, the Czar Alexander published the text of the Holy Alliance proclaiming a league of Christian states, this was read as an attack on Turkey, which was a Moslem state.

TO THIS TENSE situation in Europe

Castlereagh addressed himself promptly by insisting that to hold the alliance together was more important than those "points of secondary policy" which threatened to destroy it. W. Alison Phillips, the distinguished historian of the period, tells us that Castlereagh "understood Metternich's fear and suspicion of Russia, which, to a certain extent, he shared; but he believed that the best way of curbing Alexander's ambitions was, not to attempt to form combinations against him, still less to meet intrigue with counter-intrigue, but to make an honest appeal to the better side of his nature, and perhaps to his vanity, and so, by holding him to the solemn engagements he had entered into at Paris, to keep him securely 'grouped'."

CASTLEREAGH defined his policy in a letter to the British Minister in Berlin, dated Dec. 28, 1815, and then embodied it a few days later in a circular of instructions to all British ministers abroad, who were to communicate it to the governments to which they were accredited. The tension between Austria and Russia was, he said a peril to the alliance, and he desired "to guard our missions abroad against the danger of accelerating, if not producing, a conflict for influence between the two states."

It was the province of Great Britain, he said "to turn the confidence she inspired to the account of peace, by exercising a conciliatory influence between the powers, rather than put herself at the head of any combination, like that against Napoleon, might recur but this necessity should then no longer be problematical, should not in other words be based on guess-work and frightened prophecy, when acted upon."

To put this policy into effect, to place Great Britain in the role which Castlereagh sought for her, was a matter of several years of intricate diplomatic action. The tension of the postwar crisis lasted about seven years, but then it did subside, and gradually the fear and panic engendered by that world war disappeared.

That may have been due to the fact that England was then powerful enough, and her statesmen were then wise enough, to see clearly what part she should play.

SALVAGE

I am sure that many householders during the war have felt thankful to Mr. Pease and his assistants for their splendid war work. They converted into cash loads of apparently useless material of varying sorts, but to do this a great deal of hard work throughout the war years has been necessary. The manner in which Mr. Pease has recruited his staff and their fine teamwork has been an inspiration to those who have saved up salvage at home for the wagon.

I regret that so far no permanent arrangement has been made for the salvaging of paper and cardboard. I think this should continue into the years of peace.

NEED MORE URGENT NOW

Would you please publish this letter to correct a rumor that the Superfluity Store is closing down. The Red Cross needs our help now more than ever, as their task in Europe is still of a stupendous nature, besides which the Pacific war may still continue for some time.

I am glad to say that last month we were able to hand over to headquarters a record sum, and we intend to carry on as long as we can count on the generosity and self-denial of the public. After five years it is naturally more difficult, but we have many friends, who, having given, look again, and find something else that they can spare.

There is no difficulty at all in selling our stock, and the tourist season is always our most successful time, so I repeat once more that we have no intention of closing down.

collective bargaining agent, since the union claimed it represented a majority of the workers involved on the "Princess" ships plying between Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle and Nanaimo. Contesting the naming of the S.I.U. were the Brotherhood of Railway and Express Clerks and the Canadian Seamen's Union.

Both the opposing unions were ruled out by the labor department after considerable campaigning on the decks of the ships. The vote was taken on whether employees wished the S.I.U. or no union to represent them.

'Princess' Workers Endorse S.I.U.

Ottawa will probably name the Seafarers International Union collective bargaining agent for the employees of the B.C. Coast Service "Princess" ships in their deals with their employers, the C.P.R., following the taking of a vote here recently.

Result of the vote was announced today by union officials here. Of the 364 employees eligible to vote, 324 voted. Of the total votes tabulated, 304 voted for the Seafarers International Union, 14 against. Sixteen ballots were spoiled.

Some months ago the S.I.U. had asked Ottawa to name it the ducting this survey, found that there was less confidence in the ability of the nations of the world to outlaw war among Canadians in Quebec than in other parts of the country. In Quebec, there are considerably more people who believe that another war in 25 years is possible, than there are people who believe that such a war is unlikely. The position is reversed in the rest of Canada, as shown in the following comparison of opinion in the two areas:

	Quebec	Canada
War likely	25%	21%
War unlikely	54%	59%
Undecided and qualified	21%	20%

In addition to these area differences, the Institute reports a somewhat different outlook as between men and women. Women are more inclined to qualify their answers, or to be undecided on this issue than are men. In table form, the difference between the views of men and women as to the likelihood

Three in 10 Think War Likely Within Next 25 Years

(By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion)

TORONTO—The grim fact that about three in every 10 Canadians think that another world war is "likely" within the next 25 years emerges from a national opinion poll conducted by the Institute, in which interviewing took place just as the San Francisco Conference was getting down to business. Opinion registered in this poll does not, therefore, reflect either recent news from the Conference, nor does it reflect disturbances in the Levant between French and Arabs.

The argument has been advanced that a realistic realization of the dangers of another war is a healthy sign, as it means that the public is more likely to support action to prevent such an outbreak, and are less likely to be lulled into a false sense of security. From this point of view, perhaps, some comfort can be taken from the results of this survey.

The current poll shows that the views of the average man and woman on this outlook for peace have not changed materially since the same question was put to a cross-section of the public in December of 1943. In both the current and the 1943 survey, the question was identical:

"Do you think there is likely to be another world war within the next 25 years?"

The results obtained in the two surveys are compared in the following table:

	Dec. 1943	June 1945
Will be war	29%	31%
Will not be	44%	45%
Undecided and qualified	27%	24%

In a similar poll conducted by the British Institute early this year, it was found that 48 per cent of adult Britons believed another world war likely in 25 years, 28 per cent thought not, and 24 per cent were qualified or undecided.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband is in the navy and we haven't seen each other for many long months until now when he is coming home for a short leave. He has already expressed his wish that he may have a quiet leave with me alone, but what about his family and friends? They all love him and certainly want to see him after his long absence. What can we do?

A READER.

Answer: How to keep the returned soldier or sailor from being mobbed by his family and friends when he comes home on his furlough is a problem that no one knows how to solve, because they are all so proud of him and so fond of him and so anxious to do him honor that he cannot bear to hurt their feelings by rebuffing them.

By taking advantage of the Government Home Loan plan, for which this office is official representative, you can build a home valued, with the lot, at $5,000, borrow $4,300, and make the repayments over a period of 15 years at the rate of only $32.50 per month. And, of course, you can build a home worth less or more, with payments in exactly the same proportion.

Our complete Home Advisory and Finance Department will give you all the details and advise you every point, just as we have done for hundreds of happy-Victoria home owners.

Victoria Nature Talks

By ROBERT CONNELL

AFTER A JUNE SHOWER

AFTER the morning showers of June the wild places have an even brighter face than the gardens. The thick, growing grasses with their inflorescences form a beautiful world reflecting from the lingering raindrops the sunlight in little brilliant flashes. The colors of the wild flowers are brighter and intenser in the moist air and each of the varied leaf-textures is heightened in its effect by the little measure of rain it still retains. But most noticeable of all perhaps is the scent of flower and leaf that fills the air, for rain has a remarkable effect in distilling and distributing the various plant aromas.

The wild roses, chiefly our Nootka species, now in full flower, are the most conspicuous contributors and delightful it was last Monday to walk where their bushes line the road. The little wood rose is also displaying its flowers but it is a contributor to the perfume chiefly by its leaves and stems with their tiny glandular hairs. In fact the foliage of all three of our wild roses is similarly endowed, though the scent has not the peculiar penetrating fragrance of the imported sweetbrier.

The wild roses are however sadly disfigured by the presence of the notorious tent caterpillars upon whom unfortunately the rain has no apparent effect. I suppose their hairy coats render them proof against June showers. In clusters or singly, slowly moving forwards or squirming among their fellows, they constitute an unpleasant phenomenon although individually the caterpillars are handsome enough fellows with their pattern of black, golden yellow, and blue.

Many of them bear on the head a little white spot, the egg of some parasitic enemy. Their taste for fruit trees is seen in a wild crab-apple among the rose-bushes. Its foliage has been sadly devastated, almost every twig stripped of leaves and the young fruits looking very forlorn in their pitiful exposure.

BLUE LUPINE SPIRES

The tall meadow lupine is now in its full beauty and although it lacks the variety of color of our garden species its tall spires of dark blue and clustered many-fingered leaves give it a very handsome appearance. Twenty-one years ago I came across a patch of a much smaller lupine on one of our vacant lots. It is a plant of less stiff aspect, hence its botanical name means loose-flowered. Its height is only about 12 to 18 inches and its leaves and stems are clothed with silky hairs. It is the only locality I know of where it occurs and I am glad that so far it comes up unmolested every year. Some day however the lot will come into use and then our little friend will disappear.

A common plant in fields and by the roadside is the ribwort or ribwort plantain. Green and brown are its colors so that it is a quiet-looking object, easily enough passed by, but in the British Isles where it is a native children long ago found a use for it in their play, using the long wiry stalks and tough heads as both contestants and weapons, and calling the plant by such names as hardheads and soldiers, as well as lamb's tongues and cocks-and-hens.

The leaves form an open cluster at the base of the stem, each lance-shaped and with three to five ribs. The slender stem is strongly ribbed, so much so as to be distinctly angular. The flowers are clustered in a spike, densely but symmetrically, and are conspicuous to the unaided eye by their delicate green or creamy anthers which beginning below encircle the spike like a halo and move upwards as the lower flowers fade.

With a magnifying-glass the black and green flower leaves and the pale green pistils can be distinctly seen above this broad circle of anthers. The flowerspikes differ much in size and shape, some are little more than round knobs, others are slender and as much as three inches long, and others have small knobs at the summit of the spike; sometimes one sticks out at right angles.

Noted Organist At Memorial Recital

Lauren B. Sykes, A.A.G.O., of Portland, will be guest organist at the Edward Parsons' memorial recital at Metropolitan United Church next Friday.

As a recitalist, Mr. Sykes, who was a personal friend of Mr. Parsons, ranks as one of the finest on the Pacific coast.

The selections to be played include Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in D Major," Widor's "Toccata in F" from the Fifth Symphony and, as a tribute to Victoria, a new organ work entitled "Joyous Spring" (Intermezzo), composed by J. Ingram Smith, local organist-composer.

Galileo, (1564-1642) invented an improved telescope, carried on research in magnetism and gravitation, discovered the principle of the pendulum. Contrary to previous teaching, he maintained that bodies of different weights fall with the same velocity. When challenged to prove this theory, he dropped a ten-pound shot and a one-pound shot from the top of the Leaning Tower of Pisa. To the amazement of the University students and faculty gathered to see the experiment, both weights reached the ground at the same time.

IN our own day, as in Galileo's time, research has opened the door to discoveries which have had far-reaching results.

In 1921, sales of Canadian Nickel were discouraging. Then the Nickel industry intensified its research endeavours. Year after year new ways were sought in which industry could use Nickel to make better products.

Sales of Canadian Nickel began to increase. They doubled . . . and trebled. Mines were enlarged. New plants were built. More men were employed. Great benefits came to Canada.

In the years after the war, Nickel research laboratories will push on their search for new uses for Nickel.

The information collected by International Nickel through years of metal research is available at all times to Canadian engineers, designers and metallurgists who need better materials for better products.

Thus will science and industry, working together, build a wider use of Canadian Nickel so that still more benefits will come to Canada.

School orchestra was under the leadership of Mrs. R. Beswick.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN is over and Victorians are going to the polls today. Candidates have put on a concentrated drive with a large number of speeches in Greater Victoria and in the surrounding districts. Victorians have been going to rallies, both large and small to hear the candidates and their supporters. Sydney Child, returning officer for the Victoria riding, was busy at the week-end swearing in deputies for the taking of what is expected to be the largest poll ever recorded here. Now being rushed to completion in Victoria is a corps of 90, forming a mobile firefighting unit to deal with possible blazes from Jap explosive balloons. Controller Bishop warned that should anyone sight what is believed to be a Jap balloon bomb he should keep at a safe distance—50 to 100 yards away.

Fail to Notify Health Office Of Infection

Following a recent report that regulations governing the control of communicable diseases were to be relaxed, a large number of parents in Victoria have failed to notify the health office of chicken pox and other infectious ailments. Dr. Richard Felton, city medical health officer, stated today.

He pointed out that, while the question of placarding is under consideration and certain changes may be expected shortly, the regulation requiring that all communicable illnesses be reported to health authorities within 24 hours of onset shall remain in force and must be strictly observed.

The reason for this regulation, he said, was to give the department an opportunity to confirm diagnosis and institute control measures in the early stages of illness.

Groundwork, prelude to aerial mapping which will take until fall to complete, is now underway and findings will be the basis of recommendations to both provincial and federal governments on B.C.'s possible inferior hydro-electric development.

Mr. Stewart has conferred here with Premier Hart and heads of the Public Works Department.

Eric Bruce, graduate in forestry of the University of Toronto, has been appointed director of the office of public relations and education in the B.C. government's forest service, Forests Minister E. T. Kenney announced today.

162 MILLION V-DOLLARS added to LIFE INSURANCE RESERVES

That's the amount that was subscribed by the life insurance companies in Canada for their policyholders to the Eighth Victory Loan. It raised to almost 1,300 million dollars the total of such bonds bought by those companies since 1939.

More than one and a quarter billion dollars! That's an immense sum of money—an average of $325.00 for every policyholder in Canada! But it's still only a part of the fund required by the companies as life insurance reserves, for one sole purpose.

That fund totals more than two billion dollars—an average of $500.00 for each policyholder. And its sole purpose is to pay to the four million policyholders in Canada, or their beneficiaries, the amounts which will eventually be due to them under their policies amounting to nine billion dollars.

It is necessary that life insurance reserves keep pace with life insurance obligations to policyholders. They are determined mathematically so that the present reserve fund, together with future premiums and investment earnings, will be sufficient to take care of those obligations.

The minimum reserves which must be held are fixed by the laws of Canada and constitute about 95% of the total reserves. The remaining 5% consists of extra reserves held by the companies as additional protection against contingencies. The basis upon which they are determined is fully set out in the companies' government returns.

Until it is needed for payments to policyholders, the reserve fund is growing in the service of the country in socially useful investments.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE

THE telephone rang today and in a very excited voice Ernest Rowe of 1251 Balmoral Road informed me he had held a perfect crib hand. "That's the first time in over 40 years of cribbage playing," he said. Rowe held the hand during the course of a four-handed game with Mr. and Mrs. Schell and I. Lindsay. He held a jack and three fives and the cut brought up the fourth five. From the way he spoke I wouldn't be surprised if Rowe hasn't framed the hand to show all his friends.

THE pact was made but Mona Bell fell and had to be destroyed. The next best mare in the Cosgrove barn was Nandi, fleet but infirm daughter of Stimulus. Nandi was bred five times and the first four foals were fillies. Osman was given away, Suepa died of pneumonia and Frislan and Buntly Bell, though still active in other sills, showed little stuff. The fifth foal, by Buntly Lawless, was a strapping colt. H. Capt. Brewer Robinson was carrying on his duties as usual as acting overseas manager of the Canadian Legion when he heard of his appointment to the Canadian Senate.

The captain's reaction was undemonstrative. "It is nice to know I have friends at home," he said.

He has been active politically in his native province of Prince Edward Island a good part of his life, having held the mayor's chair in Summerside, as well as a seat in the P.E.I. Legislature. He served in France from 1915 to 1919 with the 2nd Heavy Battery during the last war, and during the years of peace associated himself extensively with the affairs of the Canadian Legion.

The senator went overseas as auxiliary supervisor attached to the Cape Breton Highlanders, in the 5th Division. After serving with that unit in the Kingdom, he transferred to the personal service department of the Canadian Legion in London.

Senator Robinson feels that he will take with him to the Upper Chamber a considerable understanding of soldiers' problems and how to deal with them. He fought with them in the last war, and has served with them well in this. He is convinced that the plans for rehabilitation of Canadian servicemen and women far surpass those of any other country.

The senator's wife is at present working in a blood clinic in Montreal, but after the war they will probably divide their time between Ottawa and Summerside, where he is associated with the P.E.I. Fur Pool Limited, a company formed by the breeders of silver fox.

NAVY BUILDS HOSPITAL SERVICE

The Royal Canadian Navy, which at the beginning of the war did not have a single navy hospital bed, now has 1,750 in seven excellent naval hospitals. At the beginning of the war the navy had no medical services. Now there are 400 medical officers and 300 nursing sisters. Seven of the doctors are women. They do the same work as men.

NURSES NEEDED

More than 200 graduate nurses are needed for immediate full-time duty in hospitals caring for returned soldiers. Demand for nurses will increase as new hospitals and hospital wings are opened to care for repatriated veterans. The public, doctors, hospitals and nurses are asked to co-operate to the utmost to meet these urgent requirements. Graduate nurses, willing and available for nursing veterans are asked by the Labor Department to get in touch with the Civil Service Commission regarding positions in hospitals operated by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

AIRWOMEN STUDY LANGUAGES

Airwomen of the R.C.A.F. in the United Kingdom are planning and studying in their off-duty hours for their roles in civilian life when they return to Canada. French, German, English, mathematics, radio mechanics, shorthand, music and handicrafts are among the subjects on their spare-time curriculum. Languages are the most popular study.

AIRFORCE COMING-OF-AGE

More than 5,000 honors have been received by Canadian airmen, an average of one to every 17, including the Victoria Cross awarded posthumously to Flt. Lt. David Hornell of Mimico, Ontario. This was announced by Air Force Headquarters in a review of the R.C.A.F. on the completion of 21 years of organization on April 1. The R.C.A.F. came into being on April 1, 1924, when "King's Regulations and Orders for the Royal Canadian Air Force," providing for an Active Permanent and Non-Permanent Force and a Reserve, became effective. For the next 14 years the service was a branch of the army.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Through the newly opened vocational training offices of the Department of Veterans Affairs, Belmont Building, 28 ex-servicemen have been placed for training in industry and business, and 46 are taking technical, business and other courses. Administrator of the vocational training end is Norman B. Roy, former R.C.A.F. squadron leader.

Servicemen in industry and various business enterprises are placed with the employer who pays them just what they are worth, and during training in his chosen occupation, the serviceman is assured of a living wage by the department which subsidizes the employer until such time as the novice has reached sufficient earning power of his own. Though the subsidy is taken from the serviceman's re-establishment credit, it is not limited to this alone. Mr. Roy pointed out the length of service is the usual determining factor in the length of training, rather than cost.

WIDE FIELD

Men placed to date embrace a wide field of employment. They are working as mechanics, photographers, bakers, carpenters and in other occupations. The department insists that training requested by servicemen be feasible in relation to jobs available. Paramount instance of difficulty in this respect lay in recent lay-offs of wireless air gunners, now related to the Air Reserve. These young men who had wireless training, wished for opportunities with the merchant navy as wireless operators, but with this situation all across the country, it was not reasonable to keep turning out an unwarranted surplus and at the same time contribute but little to permanent re-establishment of the men. Present training, Mr. Roy stated, will give the country an abundance of skilled men in trades and industry, more so than there has ever been in the past, and the question of doing this successfully lies with forestalling a glut of trained men in any one occupation.

Family Back From Philippines

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Landis with their children, Patricia, 11; Paula, 8, and Richard, 10.

Liberated three months ago by U.S. forces and Filipino guerrilla fighters from Los Banos internment camp in the Philippines, Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Landis and their children are spending 10 days in Victoria with the missionary's brother, Rev. F. M. Landis, 625 Harbinger Street.

When the Japs invaded, the Landis family took to the hills from the city of Zambonga where their mission was located, and there lived with a native tribe for a year until eventually captured by the Nipponese.

They were held prisoners in Zambonga itself for some time, and then in Davao and before transfer to Los Banos, in Santo Tomas in Manila.

Mr. Landis said he and his family were in quite good health, he himself having gained 35 pounds the month following liberation. With the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the Philippines since 1932, the family will proceed from here to Hood River, Ore., where Mrs. Landis' family resides.

Killed Overseas

Cpl. Kenneth Robert Marsland, Royal Winnipeg Rifles, missing in action in France last year, has been officially reported killed August 15, 1944, word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Marsland, 1417 Fernwood Road, states.

The 22-year-old soldier was born in Saskatoon, came to Victoria in 1937, enlisted with the Dental Corps early in 1941, and proceeded overseas with a front line unit in the following year, crossing to France on D-Day.

Shot in Shoulder By 'Unloaded' Rifle

Nineteen-year-old James Rathbone, 1473 Fort Street, is in St. Joseph's Hospital and reported progressing well today after a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle passed through his right shoulder in the bush at Thetis Lake Saturday afternoon.

Dr. E. L. McNiven who was called to Thetis Lake by B.C. police to attend the youth, said young Rathbone told him he had the butt of the rifle on the ground when it accidentally went off and shot him. He did not know the rifle was loaded, he told the doctor. There was only one shot.

B.C. police report the accident occurred between 3 and 3.15 in the afternoon. Const. Jack Lockie of the highway patrol took the youth from the Lake to the hospital.

Japs Inferior To U.S. in Equipment, Weapons, Transport

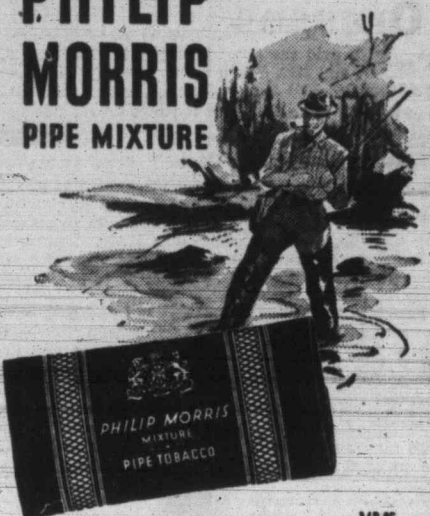

By WILLIAM STEWART WITH THE 38TH DIVISION IN THE SIERRA MADRES (CP)—Where equipment is concerned the Japanese just don't stack up against the U.S. forces. The Americans have greatly superior small arms, web equipment, artillery, transport, engineering equipment, rations and explosives.

Japanese artillery is neither extraordinary nor well used, though the Japs are good with mortars and have a small knee mortar of which the U.S. troops had no counterpart for some time. Japanese tactics are occasionally regarded as brilliant, but more often are so stupid as to defy reasonable explanation.

One of the purposes of Japanese infiltration tactics at night is to draw fire and locate U.S. automatic weapons. Because of that, with many American for-land was a leader at the Y.M.C.A. Glitz Lake camp and a member of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium team which won the British Columbia title and Pacific Northwest Y.M.C.A. championship in 1940 and 1941.

mations the rule is to meet these Japanese excursions with grenades, knives or rifle fire. The knife comes into play if a creeping Jap passes by a foxhole where often there are two or three men taking turns with the watches. Automatic weapons are not used because they would reveal their positions.

Sometimes groups of Japanese, instead of trying to creep into U.S. lines, squat outside the perimeter and spend the hours of darkness chatting audibly or rapping their helmets with bamboo sticks.

When the Japanese make their suicide charges they scream "Banzai!" the word which has given these attacks their name.

Archives Get Souvenirs Of North Expeditions

Now in possession of the Provincial Archives here are historically valuable souvenirs of expeditions to navigate the Northwest Passage.

The souvenirs have been presented to the province by Sub-Inspector Henry A. Larsen, R.C.M.P., of Victoria, captain of the R.C.M.P. patrol vessel St. Roch, which has made both the east and west passages across the top of the continent.

Included in the presentation are a flour barrel found by Larsen and his men on Beechey Island after it had been left there by Capt. Pullen's crew of the North Star expedition in 1852; part of the spar, a mahogany plank and the stem of the 12-ton ship Mary, captained by Sir John Ross in 1850; a pick, pump, sea boots, mallet and sailors' clothing from H.M.S. Resolute, which Capt. Kellett in 1853 tried to take through the passage; a jump of coal, medicine bottles and a sea biscuit which had been cached on Dealy Island.

All these expeditions were organized in search of the famous explorer Franklin, who was lost trying to locate the Passage.

The convention will conclude Saturday.

Toastmasters Hold District Conference

Burton B. Pierce Jr. of the Totem Club, Seattle, was elected the new district Governor at the afternoon session of the Toastmasters' Club conference held in Seattle Saturday.

Barry Gault, president of the Victoria club, Frank Paulding and Dr. Robert J. O'Neill represented Victoria at the one-day meeting of delegates from clubs throughout Washington and British Columbia.

In the speech contest before 400 guests at the dinner meeting, Carroll Agee of Aberdeen, Washington, was declared the winner of the five district finalists for his speech entitled "Our Obligation to the Returned Man." Dr. Robert J. O'Neill, Victoria representative, received great applause for his address "Gung Ho."

City Boys' 'Fort' Crashes in Flames

Local "enemy action" is claimed to be responsible for the destruction by fire of a boys' board and tar-paper "fort" at the back of 321 Mainland Street at 5.13 Sunday morning.

Firemen, who arrived to find the "stronghold" ablaze, were met by a number of boys, some owners of the hut, who put the whole thing down to the outcome of a feud.

The fire department says, though, the boys also reported they used candles for lighting purposes, and it is suggested these might have been responsible for the fire.

Firemen, who arrived to find taken too strong a hold for anything much to be done, and when they left 14 minutes later, a diminutive "Pacific coast strong point" lay a mass of smoking ruins.

Oak Bay Girls' Drill Team will make their next appearance at the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council picnic, Willows Beach, July 4.

Oaklands—A graduation banquet for pupils of grade 8 was held in the school auditorium.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. S. Anfield, president of the P.T.A., assisted by Mrs. R. H. McInnes, wife of the principal. Presentations were made to R. H. McInnes by Joan Bonfoy and to H. R. Dawson by Joan Wren. Speeches of congratulations were made by Mrs. Harold Campbell, Austin Curtis, F. J. Mulliner, Miss Lisa Tuck and R. H. McInnes. Games and dancing were enjoyed later.

All revolvers and pistols must be re-registered by July 1, B.C. police headquarters announced today.

Tax Notices To Be Mailed Wednesday

Some 14,000 Victoria property owners possessing approximately 20,000 parcels of land will shortly be receiving tax notices as the City Hall will commence mailing them out Wednesday, G. A. Okell, assessor-collector, said Saturday.

The large number of land sales in 1944 accounted for an additional 1,000 notices this year. Taxes are due Sept. 30, but persons paying them sooner receive a discount amounting to approximately one and one-half per cent for the period between receipt of notice and September 30.

Mayor Percy George will sign a statement to be sent out with the tax notices showing the division of the tax dollar. Division of the tax dollar is listed as follows:

Debt, 15.6 cents; schools, 32.7; police, 5.2; fire, 9.1; public works, 8.2; parks, boulevards, cemetery and pound, 3.6; public health, including hospitals, 9.9; library, 1.4; administration, 4.7; and miscellaneous and contingencies, 9.6 cents.

MEADE DENIED LICENCE

NEW YORK (AP)—Jockeys Don Meade and Ken McCombs were denied licences Saturday by the (New York) Jockey Club, whose meeting was attended by Ashley T. Cole, chairman of the state racing commission.

The Jockey Club announced no reasons for the denials. Meade recently was suspended in Mexico City but that ban ended with the close of the meeting there.

Dramatic Film Of Russ at War

The first picture of the Nazi invasion of Russia to come out of Hollywood, Samuel Goldwyn's

"The North Star" is said to be one of the most dramatic offerings of recent years is now being shown at the Cadet Theatre.

The RKO Radio release deals with the people of a little Ukrainian village when the Nazi blitz hits them, and their heroic efforts to avenge the brutality of the German forces.

Anne Baxter, Dana Andrews,
Walter Huston, Walter Brennan, Erich von Stroheim and the new "find," Farley Granger, have principal roles in the gripping film, for which Lillian Hellman wrote the story and screenplay.

Stage Success Appears in Film

The poisonous pranks of two lovable but distinctly piqued old maids are laughingly recounted in Warner Bros.' lethal farce, "Arsenic and Old Lace," starring Cary Grant, opening today at the York Theatre.

With a brilliant supporting cast including Raymond Massey, Jack Carson, Priscilla Lane and Peter Lorre, the film is based on the stage success of the same name by Joseph Kesselring, which ran for more than four years on Broadway under the production aegis of Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse.

DENNIS O'KEEFE KNOWS it's a beautiful diamond ring, but he hopes June Havoc doesn't get any wrong ideas with the gift. Scene is from Edward Small's fabulous farce, "Brewster's Millions," now showing at the Plaza and Oak Bay Theatres.

'Brewster's Millions' At Oak Bay, Plaza

Pictures frequently have been held up because of the illness of a star or a featured player, but "Brewster's Millions," the Edward Small farce comedy now playing at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres through United Artists release, is probably the only film on record ever to be held up because of the unavaila-bility of a flower.

A fateful line in the script of the comedy caused all the trouble.
The line read "Send Miss Peggy four dozen orchids" and it released a chain of events which resulted in high grade headaches for everyone.

When the exquisite flowers were put before Helen Walker, who is Peggy in the film, her eyes turned red, her face began to twitch, her head ached and she started sneezing.

"It's these orchids," she explained, "I'm allergic to pollen and I've never been able even to look at an orchid, let alone let one get right next to me."

Berlin Blasted In Warner Film

They bombed "Hotel Berlin" on the Warner Bros. set—and got much more than they'd counted on. The screams reached a higher and more fearful pitch than expected and one woman, an extra, fainted. It happened during the filming of the Warner Bros. picture by that name which moves into the Atlas today.

Before the scene was shot,
Director Peter Godfrey gathered about him all the principals—
Andrea King, Faye Emerson, Helmuth Dantine, Raymond Massey and Peter Lorre.

"This, as you know," he said to them, "will be one of the dramatic high spots of the picture."

Show Best Seller At Capitol Theatre

had such a phenomenal effect on so phenomenal a number of censors as has "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," the 20th Century-Fox filmization of Betty Smith's sensational best-seller which opens today at the Capitol Theatre.

Ella Kazan, the brilliant young Broadway stage director, resisted all Hollywood offers until 20th Century-Fox sought him to direct the film version of the heart-warming Betty Smith novel.

Dorothy McGuire, who first became famous three years ago in the title role of "Claudia" on Broadway, then last year repeated the role on the screen, has a chance to prove in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" that she has other possibilities. She plays the dramatic young wife and mother, "Katie Nolan," who makes a poignant struggle against poverty.

The role of her husband,
"Johnny Nolan," has brought James Dunn back from the outskirts of fame to the centre of the Hollywood spotlight.

Graduate School Of Music Founded

TORONTO—Announcement is made by the Toronto Conservatory of Music of the establishment of a graduate school of music. At the same time the governors of the Conservatory have announced the enlargement of the executive personnel of the institution and the appointment of three distinguished Canadian musicians to senior posts on the staff.

The post of director is created as the senior administrative position. Dr. Charles Peaker has been named director.

Ettore Mazzoleni has been appointed principal and will have general direction of teaching and musical activities, other than those of the new graduate school.

Dr. Arnold Walter has been named vice-principal and will be in immediate charge of the Conservatory Graduate School.

As director, Dr. Peaker will also act as chairman of the Con-servatory's committee of management. Other members of the committee are Mr. Mazzoleni, Dr.
Walter, Frederick C. Silvestre, registrar of the examination department, and W. Kenneth Gibb, secretary and business manager of the Conservatory.

"Establishment of a graduate school of music fulfils an ambition that has been in the minds of all those associated with the Conservatory since it was founded 50 years ago," said H. H.
Bishop, chairman of the board of governors, who made the announcements. "The school will provide complete courses of study in all phases of music for talented young Canadians, including those who are going on to concert careers or other professional work in teaching, radio, church music, bands, orchestras,
etc. Working in close co-operation with the Faculties of Music and Arts of the University of Toronto, it will provide special lectures and tuition for those taking Mus.Bac. and Mus.Doc. degrees and students in the Arts (honors in music) course, as well as for those desiring special training as supervisors or teachers of school music."

Mr. Bishop stated that tuition fees in the new graduate school would be such as to insure that no talented young Canadian would be denied a musical education because of limited financial resources.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

SIX of us were sitting around the battered old card table in the barnlike shack that served as pilots' operations at the Kunning terminal of China National Aviation Corporation. The cold fog settling slowly over the airfield had driven everyone indoors except the mechanics and field attendants who were refueling our planes.

I was $112 in the hole—I remember this distinctly because it was just the beginning of a bad run of luck at stud poker. Bob Robertson of Macon, Ga., and his co-pilot, a Chinese boy named Waty Sung, were leading by a heavy margin, each having a stack of lettuce in front of him like the harvest from a victory garden back home. Eddie Quinn, also Chinese and co-pilot on Capt. Al Gingiss's ship, was a little ahead, too; but Bill Fox of Dahlart, Tex., my co-pilot, and young Tsui, our radioman, were right with me—at the bottom of our pockets. By every law of chance, it seemed to me, one of us was about due for a winning hand. So it was an awkward time to hear Flight Superintendent Pottschmidt shouting:

"Captain Genovese! Hey, Gen!" And then in a muffled, impatient aside, "Where is that guy?"

"Potty" was a big man, about 40, with a fighter's build. Standing behind the desk with his hands in his hip pockets and his broad shoulders hunched, his big blond head had to tilt down to look at me. In fact, my five feet eight inches looked pretty small among most of the boys flying across the Himalaya Hump between Kunning, in China's Yunnan Province, and Assam, India. "Got a job for you, Gen," Pottschmidt said. "Thirty-two passengers—and they're all hot to get started." He pointed at his office window, getting steadily grayer with fog, and shook his head. "Let me know what route you'll take so we'll know where to look for the pieces."

CHINA NATIONAL doesn't fly for pleasure. There were no tourists among those 32 passengers.

Aside from two Allied generals I had flown before, there were many high Chinese officers and a few civilians. Among the latter I recognized a confidential adviser to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek and a foreign-office big shot. They were all people that really deserved to get where they were going, and I wished it wasn't my responsibility to get them there. I checked with Pottschmidt just before taking off and said I would fly the north route. His information from Captain Gin-giss, who had been the last one in from Assam about 8 o'clock that morning, was that the stratus formation ran up only to about 15,000 feet—above that it was clear—but that there was a sleet storm blowing near Lake Tali. Our take-off wasn't too bad, the fog was thin enough across the field so I could see the ground 100 yards ahead; it was just a matter of giving both engines of my Douglas C-53 everything they had and then the instant we were off the runway, pulling up the gear so we wouldn't trip on the trees hiding at the end of the strip.

We never carried guns on China National transports—they weighed too much and cut down on cargo capacity.

Clear of the field, Fox and I relaxed and I settled down to the serious business of climbing up to 15,000 feet where I would find that promised clear sailing. Fox grinned at our present zero visibility and nodded toward the cabin where the passengers were huddled. Then in his slow, Texas drawl he said, "If it was a clear day those Japs would be flockin' around like vultures after carion, to bag a load like this."

There wasn't much poetry in the remark, but there was plenty of truth. We never carried guns on China National transports—they weighed too much and cut down on cargo capacity—and our only protection against Jap attacks were bad weather and our own flying ability.

At 12,000 feet, Fox and I and Tsui, our radioman, put on our oxygen masks and kept right on climbing. My hope of getting into the clear at 15,000 was fading; the soup seemed to get thicker the higher we went. And, as a matter of fact, it didn't clear until we were at more than 18,000 feet. Then for almost two hours we had good flying except for a strong wind blowing north. According to my calculations we were considerably north and

CARBON DIOXIDE HELPS PLANTS TO STAY ALIVE AND GOES INTO SODA

When limestone is heated and turned into powder, it becomes quicklime. This white powder, being "caustic," has the power of a burning action.

Close to two centuries ago, a Scottish student took note of that fact. Limestone itself had no burning action, and he wondered why quicklime had it.

The student, Joseph Black, was studying at the University of Edinburgh. In 1756 he published a thesis to explain the change. He said that limestone lost a certain gas when it was heated and turned into quicklime. To this gas he gave the name of "fixed air."

JOSEPH BLACK

Since that time the gas which Black spoke about has come to be known as "carbon dioxide." Sometimes it is called "carbonic acid gas." It plays a part in the life of plants.

The air has only three or four parts of carbon dioxide out of 10,000. People do not need it for breathing; in fact their lungs send it out as waste. Plants need it, however. It is drawn into the leaves of trees, bushes, grass and so on, and is used in making plant food.

Plants must have carbon dioxide if they are to live. If plants were taken away, neither people nor animals would continue to live long on this earth.

That is only part of the story. Several special ways have been found for people to use this gas. Firemen have it in the "fire foam" which they shoot on burning buildings. It is employed in making ice, and it goes into soda water.

When we take a seat at a soda fountain and order an ice cream soda, the clerk puts in "carbonated water." It is the carbon dioxide in this water which provides the "fizz." Other soft drinks, such as pop and root beer, also contain the gas.
